Harvard
Business Press
Finally, an address book
that's easy to use, logically
organized,
with space for
plenty of
entries per
letter, and
designed for a
social-
networking
world that
forces you to change your password
every six months. Are you frustrated
that you can't remember the
unhackable
password you
came up with
the day before? Tired of hitting
"Forgot Password"

because your
login hints
leave you
scratching
your head?
Say good-bye
to those sticky
notes you've
got shingled
all over your
computer.
Most address
books being
sold today still
look exactly
like the ones
you'd have bought
decades ago.
But it's a different world
now.
Businesses
and friends
require
different sets
of information.
You don't need to know
Amazon's
street
address, nor

does your mother's
home address
require a
password.
What you do
need are user
names,
passwords,
security
question
prompts, and
IP addresses
for your business
contacts as
well as street
addresses and
smartphone
info for your personal life.
In creating
Address Book
for the
Twenty-First Century, Frank
Stephenson
and Eileen
Hargaden
recognized
this. They've separated

those very different types of interactions into two sections:

"Businesses and Websites" and "Friends and Family."

This address book is for anyone who can log onto a computer or who has even just one friend or relative.

Perfect for both business and home use.

Crimson Publishing
This book provides an overview of the Second Council Directive 77/91/EEC of 13 December 1976 (also known as the Capital Directive) and its implementing rules in each Member State of the European Union and the European Economic Area. It provides companies and advisors with useful insights regarding articles of association and related documents, the incorporation and capital requirements of European companies with limited liability and the rules applicable to the acquisition and pledge of their own shares, the cross-participations, the financial assistance and the distribution of profits. A general report on the Capital Directive is followed by a discussion of the implementation of the rules laid down in the Directive in the national laws of each Member State, each in accordance with a common format and contributed by a practitioner from that State.
