 Behold! I have graven thee upon the palms of my hands; thy walls are continually before me. - Isaiah, xlix: 16. The history of this church has its origin at a period only about two years later than the organization of the town itself. The Legislature, at its session in January, 1820, appointed a Commission of ten persons to select a site for the capital of the State. Only five accepted the trust. These gentlemen, after examining various localities, finally settled upon two, one of which they agreed should be their final choice. These were the mouth of Fall Creek, and the Bluff's of White River. After thorough examination of both, and abundant discussion of the advantages afforded by each, they proceeded to determine the question by vote, when the present locality was chosen by a majority of one. The Legislature, at its session in January, 1821, confirmed the choice of the commissioners, and at the suggestion of the late Judge Sullivan, of Madison, one of the committee appointed to draw up the Bill of Confirmation, conferred upon the infant capital its euphonious and appropriate name. As soon as this important measure was adopted. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com

 William Manchester's epic and definitive account of President John F. Kennedy's assassination--now restored to print in a new paperback edition. As the world still reeled from the tragic and historic events of November 22, 1963, William Manchester set out, at the request of the Kennedy family, to create a detailed, authoritative record of the days immediately preceding and following President John F. Kennedy's death. Through hundreds of interviews, abundant travel and firsthand observation, and with unique access to the proceedings of the Warren Commission, Manchester conducted an exhaustive historical investigation, accumulating forty-five volumes of documents, exhibits, and transcribed tapes. His ultimate objective -- to set down as a whole the national and personal tragedy that was JFK's assassination -- is brilliantly achieved in this galvanizing narrative, a book universally acclaimed as a landmark work of modern history.

Excerpt from Address of Herbert Hoover: Before the Polish Convention in Buffalo, N. Y. On November 12th, 1919
 States, have out of sympathy for, your been constant in contribution and moral support to those leaders for Polish independence who entered War saw in triumph in January this year. You have contributed not only your resources, but your sons to this great thing. America has still another great link of sympathy with Poland. One of those two great Poles who now lead the Polish people, lived many years in the United States and his inspiration and vision of government arise from our institutions. Thus it comes that one of the two great men who have been the builders of the freedom of Poland is an American citizen. These two great men, Faderowski and Pilsudski, are today two of the greatest figures that have emerged from this war. They have the abilities, the courage and resolution of constructive statesmanship. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
