A Guided Skills-Based Journey is a series of books aimed at developing key reading and study skills. This brilliant new series provides teachers with a wide variety of genres, both fiction and non-fiction, which will allow children to access, interpret and understand what they are reading. It increases the child's knowledge and understanding of why certain words are chosen by an author. It gives the reader the chance to speculate on the tone and purpose of the texts, as well as consider both the texts' themes and audience.

"Written with the wisdom of a man who has lived through two centuries and the wit of someone who began his career as professional comedy writer, the first part of Wouk's memoir ("Sailor") refers to his Navy experience and writing career, the second ("Fiddler") to what he's learned from living a life of faith." Have you ever considered going on a six-month business trip? Sounds crazy, doesn't it? But that's exactly what the men and women of our Navy do on a regular basis as they are sent on deployment. Perhaps you have a friend or family member in the Navy. Have you stopped to wonder what their daily life was like while on sea duty? What do Sailors do while away from home for six months at a time? If you have ever wanted an insight into Navy life, Messages From the Sea will provide answers to your questions. Throughout Annette Lanham's 18-year Navy career, she's been assigned duties in several countries around the world, spending anywhere between 18 months and 27 months living in cultures radically different from what she knew in the United States. She's also been temporarily assigned to many other countries on a short-term basis, one to three months. During her years of living and working overseas, she's seen and experienced many memorable events. However, those experiences paled in comparison with the adventures she had while stationed onboard the USS OKANE (DDG 77), including two deployments to the Persian Gulf and participating in OPERATION ENDURING FREEDOM and OPERATION IRAQI FREEDOM. Although based on her own personal experiences, this book provides insight into what the young men and women of today's United States Navy live on a daily basis. It could be any one of their stories.

The Englishwoman's Review, which published from 1866 to 1910, participated in and recorded a great change in the range of possibilities open to women. The ideal of the magazine was the idea of the emerging emancipated middle-class woman: economic independence from men, choice of occupation, participation in the male enterprises of commerce and government, access to higher education, admittance to the male professions, particularly medicine, and, of course, the power of suffrage equal to that of men. First published in 1985, this eighteenth volume contains issues from 1885. With an informative introduction by Janet Horowitz Murray and Myra Stark, and an index compiled by Anna Clark, this set is an invaluable resource to those studying nineteenth and early twentieth-century feminism and the women's movement in Britain.

An inspiring, irreverent, and spirited manifesto for senior sailors and would-be sailors. Nearly one million recreational sailors are now over 60, and their numbers will soon swell with baby boomers. Yet, no sailing literature has addressed the needs, concerns, and dreams of senior sailors--until now! In Call of the Ancient Mariner, 82-year-old Reese Palley proclaims that sailing is the natural sport for the old, the best way to lengthen and improve your life, and the perfect antidote to a society that conspires to narrow senior horizons. Having circled the globe on a small boat in his 60s and 70s, Palley assures older sailors that with the right preparation and gear, they can and should keep sailing long into their golden years. In his eloquent, engaging, and witty style, he: Helps older sailors prepare for long voyages Gives practical advice on making boats safer and easier to operate Shows why, far from endangering health, sailing improves health, and profiles a delightful variety of septua- and octogenerian sailors to underline the point
