This NAO report examines the role and cost effectiveness of contact services for customers from the Department for Work and Pensions. During the 2004-05 period the Department spent £190 million on running contact centres. The centres themselves answered more than 33 million incoming calls, and made 7 million outgoing calls, as well as handling 300,000 e-mails, 30,000 faxes and 4 million incoming letters and application forms. The Department serves a wide range of customers, including 28 million pensioners and benefit recipients, paying out £112 billion a year in benefits and pensions. This report sets out a number of recommendations: that the Department should develop its understanding of customer demand and improve its forecasting processes; that the Department should aim to offer a seamless service, by reducing the number of telephone contact points, as well as sharing good practice techniques across such areas as forecasting and training; that contractual arrangements for staff should match the demand needs of customers, and that contact centre targets should therefore focus on customer need; that the Department should advance initiatives to improve its information on costs.

Over the last two decades, large corporations and companies worldwide have been implementing Enterprisewide Resource Planning (ERP) applications. This has today percolated down to the midsize companies as the benefits of ERP applications are appreciated. Not surprisingly, in business schools across the country, ERP has become a popular and major subject of study. This accessible, easy-to-read book explains the ERP concept, its theory and implementation with practical case studies.

Throughout, the focus remains on the Indian scenario. While Part I of the book deals with the theory of ERP with detailed discussions on best practices in ERP, ERP vendor analysis, its basic functional modules and its implementation, Part II describes ERP "As Is" to ERP "To Be". The book details and delineates the fundamental and advanced features of ERP in a style that is intelligible to the reader. It presents a structured methodology designed to help students understand the conceptual elements of ERP as well its implementation. The book is intended as a text for postgraduate students of management and as a valuable reference for the practicing professionals. That it is based on the author's vast experience in the subject in more than 65 Indian manufacturing companies, and is a reader-friendly text with a number of diagrams, screenshots, and tables further enhances its value.
